SPA 210: Intr to Latino & Latin Amer St

This course offers a comprehensive overview of the historical, cultural, social, and political dynamics that have shaped the Latino presence in the United States. We will explore the profound connections between U.S. foreign policy and the significant migration flows from Latin America. Through examining the histories and experiences of key Latino groups—including those from Cuba, Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic, Mexico, El Salvador, and Guatemala—students will gain an understanding of the factors that have driven migration, the settlement patterns in U.S. cities, and the diverse challenges and contributions of Latino communities.

This course aims to provide a humanistic perspective on the Latino experience, highlighting the interplay between U.S. imperialism and the formation of Latino identity in America. 3 credit hours

SPA 220: Spanish for Heritage Speakers

This course is specifically designed for students who have grown up in environments where Spanish was frequently spoken. This course leverages students' pre-existing understanding of spoken Spanish to enhance their ability to communicate effectively in a variety of contexts. Employing a multifaceted approach, the course promotes the development of the four key language skills: listening, speaking, reading, and writing. By the end of the semester, students will be able to comprehend, speak, read, and write Spanish more proficiently, building on their prior knowledge and experiences from home and community interactions. This course emphasizes the use of Spanish as the primary language of communication in the classroom, requiring consistent attendance, daily pre-class preparation, and active participation.
